JOHN F.
CARTER

As the CEO of ACarterBrothers Company, John F. Carter sits at the helm of the market leading electronic security, electrical, mechanical and specialty services conglomerate as one of the most influential and highly respected CEO's in industry today. He is responsible for the company's broadening footprint in the USA, unprecedented growth, and increasing recognition. Under his leadership, the company continues to build and foster unparalleled dedication to the growing number of clients, employees, and partnerships.

As the firm's steward, John utilizes his extensive knowledge to position the firm to evolve and grow its offering of innovative electronic security, electrical and mechanical solutions through a delivery methodology that provides consistent, cost effective solutions for its clients through planning, design, procurement, installation, and maintenance. The firm has offices nationwide and is constantly hiring new talent to keep up with expansion, which attracted ITT Technical Institute to feature John, and the firm, in a national televised commercial. Now celebrating over 15 years of service, the award-winning company serves clients nationally through relationships with blue chip corporations. CarterBrothers growth can be attributed to the founders' intuitive and strategic insight. While diverse in characterization, all the companies John F. Carter owns or is a partner in, are geared toward John's' creed of providing quality service through integrity and excellence.

CarterBrothers was also the first MBE in its industry to surpass more than a billion dollars in gross sales. “Under the stewardship of Charles Tippins, Barbette Hill, and the operational leadership of Johnny Howze; Carter Brothers has worked hand in hand over the past year with Georgia Power to successfully expand our services and safely deliver on time and under budget work. The efforts and support of this Georgia Power team has enabled Carter Brothers to build relationships at the plant level, become an integral part of the day to day operations with these customers and develop opportunities for our growth.

In my 25 plus years working in corporate America, it is rare to find a company such as Georgia Power; who goes above and beyond to get your business engaged in the day to day operations of their business, while at the same time helping you improve your service offering. While diversity got Carter Brothers in the door, Georgia Power advocates actively sought, identified, and encouraged our inclusion and participation on projects. Georgia Power has worked as a “True Partner” helping to facilitate our understanding of the Southern Company culture, requirements, and expectations. As a corporate mentor, Georgia Power has provided the necessary guidance to ensure success by creating a sustainable, and mutually beneficial relationship,” states John F. Carter, President & CEO, A CarterBrothers Company.
